FRUSTRATION AND PAIN POINTS: He can't do online school with his major. Being in college instead of working for a company despite already having the skills (in his opinion) Not having a steady gym routine	Teddy is very lazy. He even admits it. Some days he will skip classes because he can't be bothered or because he spent all night playing video games with his roommate or by himself. He is nonchalant about studying because he didn't really want to go to college. Teddy was already fluent in Java and C++ and had created little games for himself by time he graduated. However, he knew that his chances of getting a job at a game development company were higher with a degree. Because he loves gaming so much, he is usually indoors playing Call of Duty or League of Legends. On days that he does go out, Teddy goes to class then goes straight to the gym.
SCENARIOS: Would use a gym life logging app in order to show off to his friends (and the ladies) how ripped he is getting. Calls it "something light" to hide his low self esteem but cannot lift more than a 40 pound.	He was never the most sporty kid in high school, though he was decent at soccer and baseball. He always wanted to go to the gym, but felt intimidated by the buff athletes that were usually there; especially since he was a skinny 5'6 ft dude. When he began college he made a resolution to overcome his low self-esteem by reaching "peak physical performance" a.k.a abs and biceps. He is especially self conscious about not having a girlfriend, so he hopes that his new workout routine will make him more appealing to the ladies. So far, he has been somewhat consistent with his routine. He feels that he doesn't really know what workouts to follow to achieve his goal, but he hopes to make some progress by the end of the semester.
